ABSTRACT

This report, the sixth in a series by the New York State Education Department Office of Postsecondary Policy Analysis provides the only complete accounting of financial aid available to students at New York's degree-granting postsecondary institutions. It shows trends in financial aid from state, federal, institutional, and private sources for the academic years 1984-85, 1985-86, and 1986-87. The first section offers an overview of all student aid funds. It examines trends in aid per student and compares aid trends to changes in undergraduate expenses, other economic indicators, and enrollment trends. The following section contains detailed tables showing funds and recipients for specific aid programs, with separate tables for pre- and post-baccalaureate students in each sector and at each type of institution within sectors. Tables are categorized by New York State, State University of New York, City University of New York (CUNY), independent institutions, and degree-granting proprietary institutions. Statistics show the following: since 1984, loans have been the most prevalent form of aid in the nation; in 1986-87, over 62% of all aid funds went to independent sector students; grants per full time equivalent increased in every sector except at CUNY's; and undergraduate enrollment declined 2% between 1984-85 and 1986-87. Appended are a glossary of terms, a description of the student aid data sources, and a list of institutions included in each sector and type category used in the report. (SM)

Introduction

This is the sixth in a series of reports which provides the only complete accounting of financial aid available to students at New York's degree-granting postsecondary institutions. Based on data provided by postsecondary institutions, by the Higher Education Services Corporation and units of the State Education Department responsible for administering financial aid programs, this report shows trends in financial aid from State, federal, institutional and private sources for academic years 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87.

The first section of this report provides an overview of all student aid funds. The following section contains detailed tables showing funds and recipients for specific aid programs, with separate tables for pre- and post-baccalaureate students in each sector and at each type of institution within sectors. The appendices to this report contain a glossary of terms; a description of the student aid data sources; and a list of institutions included in each sector and type category used in this report.

STATEWIDE OVERVIEW

This overview presents trends in total funds available to all students, examines trends in aid per student, using full-time equivalent students (FTE) as a measure of total enrollment, and compares aid trends to changes in undergraduate expenses, other economic indicators and enrollment trends.

Total Student Aid Funds

The total amount of student aid in New York is determined by aggregate enrollment; the enrollment and demographic characteristics of students; the aggregate demonstrated financial need of aid applicants; federal and State aid program eligibility criteria and award sizes; students' and families' willingness to borrow; institutional budgetary decisions and private philanthropy.

— Nearly $2.2 billion of student financial assistance from federal, State, institutional and private sources was awarded to students at degree-granting institutions in New York in 1986-87.

— Between 1984-85 and 1986-87, the total amount of aid was essentially stable, increasing by only one-half of one percent. Grant funds increased 13 percent but loan funds decreased 11 percent.

— Since 1984, loans have been the most prevalent form of aid in the nation. In contrast, loan funds in New York have accounted for a smaller share of all aid since 1984-85. Grants in New York have assumed a growing share, up to 53.5 percent of all aid in 1986-87 from 48.4 percent in 1984-85.

— In 1986-87, nearly 52 percent of all aid came from programs sponsored by the federal government, nearly 21 percent came from institutional funds and nearly 19 percent came from State sponsored programs.

— Between 1984-85 and 1986-87, aid from institutional sources increased 24 percent, aid from State sources increased nearly 8 percent and aid from federal sources declined 11 percent.

— In 1986-87, nearly 78 percent of all aid funds came from four sources: the federally guaranteed loan programs (GSL, SLS and PLUS); the State's Tuition Assistance Program; institutionally funded grants from both restricted and unrestricted funds; and the federal Pell Grant program. Funds from the federal loan programs declined 16 percent and funds from the Pell Grant program declined 5 percent between 1984-85 and 1986-87.

— In 1986-87, over 62 percent of all aid funds went to independent sector students. Another 33 percent went to students at the public university systems. The share of all aid going to independent sector students has been steadily increasing since 1984-85.

— The $116-million statewide increase in grant funds between 1984-85 and 1986-87 was composed of $85-million in institutionally funded grants, of which $80-million came from independent sector institutions.

Aid per Full-time Equivalent Student (FTE)

Aid per FTE is a useful measure of aid trends because it accounts for the impact of enrollment changes on aggregate amounts of aid. Although total aid in the State increased by only .5 percent between 1984-85 and 1986-87, the amount of aid per FTE increased by 2 percent during that period.

— The statewide amount of aid per FTE was $2,946 in 1986-87. Of this amount, $1,576 was grants and $1,082 was loans.

— Aid per FTE decreased in the public sectors and increased in the independent and proprietary sectors between 1984-85 and 1986-87. The change ranged from a decrease of nearly 12 percent at City University to an increase of over 19 percent at proprietary institutions.

— Grants per FTE increased in every sector except at City University, where they declined more than 4 percent. Loans per FTE decreased in every sector.

Student Aid in Context

Changes in the amounts and types of financial aid available to postsecondary students can be interpreted by comparing them to changes in student expenses and in other economic indicators reflecting the public's capacity to pay for college.

— Between 1984-85 and 1986-87, total aid per FTE did not increase as rapidly as either tuition or total expenses in any sector except at proprietary institutions, where aid kept pace with tuition.

— Grant aid per FTE increased at least as rapidly as both tuition and total expenses at every sector except City University.

— Adjusting for inflation, the total amount of aid and the amount of aid per FTE actually declined between 1984-85 and 1986-87.

— Both personal and family income increased more rapidly than undergraduate expenses at public institutions but family income did not keep pace with price increases at independent and proprietary institutions.

— Undergraduate enrollment declined 2 percent between 1984-85 and 1986-87 while post-baccalaureate enrollment increased about 3 percent.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Average Annual Undergraduate Tuition and Required Fees are computed from institutionally reported data in the Higher Education Data System for typical in-jurisdiction undergraduate charges. Averages are weighted by full-time undergraduate enrollment.

Average Annual Undergraduate Total College Costs include weighted average tuition and fees plus the other expenses allowed in student budgets prepared by financial aid administrators. Figures for State University are taken from SUNY Central Administration's publications. For the independent sector, on-campus housing is assumed and room and board is the unweighted average from the Higher Education Data System. All other costs for independent sector on-campus residents and all non-tuition costs for commuters at CUNY and proprietary institutions are considered to be equal to national averages reported by the College Scholarship Service.

College Work-Study Program wages include wages paid through the College-Work Study Program authorized by Title IV of the Higher Education Act, which provides for a federal contribution and requires an institutional matching contribution. The institutional contribution includes funds from institutions, the State's College Work-Study Reimbursement Program and non-institutional employers.

Consumer Price Index is from the U.S. Department of Commerce as adjusted by the Washington Office of the College Board to reflect academic year rather than calendar year periods.

FTE is a full-time equivalent student, computed for the State as: full-time undergraduate enrollment + 1/3 part-time undergraduate enrollment + full-time graduate/professional enrollment + 4/10 part-time graduate/professional enrollment.

Grants Provided by External Gifts and Grants are awarded by organizations other than the reporting institution but known to the institution.

Guaranteed Federal Loans are need-based subsidized loans authorized by Title IV of the Federal Higher Education Act and either administered by the Higher Education Services Corporation or other guarantee agencies. Counted in this category are loans made through the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) Program; Auxiliary Loans to Assist Students (ALAS) program and the Parental Loans for Undergraduate Students (PLUS) program.

HEOP, EOP, SEEK grants are received by opportunity program students through the Higher Education Opportunity Program at independent institutions, the Educational Opportunity Program at State University and the Search for Elevation, Education and Knowledge (SEEK) and College Discovery (CD) Programs at City University.

Institutional Grants includes grants and scholarships from institutional funds, as well as tuition and fee remissions, exemptions and waivers, except those available through formal policies regarding benefits for employees or their dependents. Restricted grants come from funds whose use is limited to student aid and includes SUSTA and CUSTA funds in the public sectors.

Institutionally-funded loans includes all loans made with institutional funds, with the exception of short-term contingency or emergency loan funds.

Median Family Income is from the U.S. Department of Commerce for the Northeast Census region of the U.S. which includes Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Median family income refers to the calendar year in which the academic year begins.

National Direct Student Loans (NDSL) are need-based loans awarded through the federal campus-based programs authorized by Title IV of the Higher Education Act.

NYSED is the New York State Education Department.

NYSHESC is the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation.

Other Governmental Grants includes grants and scholarships from other states, localities, vocational rehabilitation programs, ROTC and additional government grant programs not otherwise itemized in the NYSED's institutional student aid survey.

Other Loans includes loans from all other sources not itemized in the NYSED survey. Loans from the Supplemental Higher Education Loan Financing program (SHELF) appear to be included here although specific instructions were not provided on the survey instrument.

Other New York State Grants includes the Native American Grants administered by NYSED.

Other Student aid is a residual category for aid not itemized in the NYSED survey.

Pell Grants are federal need-based entitlement grants provided through Title IV of the Higher Education Act.

Per Capita Personal Disposable Income is New York's aggregate after-tax income divided by the population. It is computed from special analyses prepared by the U.S. Department of Commerce for inclusion in the 1987 edition of Kent D. Halstead's Financing Higher Education in the Fifty States. Income refers to the calendar year prior to the academic year.

Regents Scholarships includes all State grants, scholarships and fellowships administered by the Higher Education Services Corporation, including APTS and Lehman Fellowships, but excluding TAP and STAP.

Student Assistantships refers to all salaries, wages and stipends received as part of educationally-related activities, other than those reported in the wages category.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG) are need-based grants provided through Title IV of the Higher Education Act as part of the federal campus-based programs. , TAP includes both TAP (Tuition Assistance Program) and STAP (Supplemental Tuition Assistance Program) awards.

Wages from institutional restricted and unrestricted funds exclude those counted under student assistantships.

Appendix B

STUDENT AID DATA SOURCES

The New York State Education Department's (NYSED) student aid data collection activities are part of the annual cycle of the Higher Education Data System. The student aid cycle begins each autumn when questionnaires, the NYSED-4.1 form and its supplements, are sent to all degree-granting institutions in the State to obtain information about student aid during the previous academic year. This institutional survey is the source of information on institutionally funded aid, privately funded aid and all the federal Title IV programs except the loan programs administered by the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation (NYSHESC). NYSHESC and units within NYSED that administer student aid programs supply data for all other programs.

Institutional survey forms are edited when they arrive at NYSED. During the editing process, corrections are made for arithmetic and classification errors and institutions are contacted for clarification.

In each data cycle, NYSHESC provides data for the two previous cycles so that NYSED can update its files to reflect the most current information for TAP and the federal guaranteed loan programs. In addition, institutional summary tables are mailed to chief executive officers and to financial aid administrators for verification with each annual report on student aid. To date, changes resulting from updating have been minor, but whenever inconsistencies appear in two reports in this series, the most recent report should be considered authoritative.

Response rates for the institutional survey have been high since its inception in 1981. For the 1986-87 data collected in the fall of 1987, 95.5 percent of the institutions surveyed submitted a form. Nonrespondents typically have been seminaries, two-year schools in the independent sector and degree-granting proprietary schools, where the numbers of aid recipients are relatively small. Nonresponding institutions are indicated in Appendix D. Estimation to adjust for institutional nonresponse reduces fluctuation in the statewide estimates of total funds derived from the data.

Item nonresponse has occurred over the years, especially for recipient counts for institutionally funded grants, loans and wages. Prior to 1986-87, treatment of recipient counts for institutionally funded programs was inconsistent. Recipient counts should be considered reliable for academic years 1986-87 and later.

Some undercounting of aid funds and recipients in the State is unavoidable because only the aid known to postsecondary institutions and to agencies administering student aid programs can be accounted for in the NYSED surveys. Aid from sources such as employers, the Veterans Administration, private associations and out-of-state loan guarantee agencies may not be known by survey respondents.

Whenever average awards appear in aggregate summary tables generated from the NYSED's student aid database, the averages are computed only from institutions reporting both funds and recipient counts. This means that multiplying the average award by the number of recipients may yield a product that is lower than the amount of total funds available.
